I'm Rebecca. Talent 2: And I'm Virak. Here on SpeedDesk, it's our job to fill all you fine motor enthusiasts in on all things fast and furious.
6:15-5:00 Take Cam 3 Wait till end of 1 st sentence, Take Cam 1 Ready Cam 2 Take Cam 2	(NASCAR SFX) NASCAR Segment begins	Talent 1:(Camera 3) Starting us off today, it's time for all things NASCAR. We saw an absolutely spectacular outing from the competitors of the Texas Race, didn't we Virak? Talent 2: You've got that right Rebecca. (Camera 1) We saw Kyle Larson take the lead in points, despite having less wins than some of the other drivers. Denny Hamlin took second, and William Byron took third. Talent 1: Aside from the podium finishers, we also had some less than stellar

Ready Commercial Ready Mute Mics Cut to Black/Mute Mics		news come from the Texas race as well. We saw the suspension of crew chief Cliff Daniels for the next two weeks after an incident involving a loose wheel endangered one of the drivers lives. Talent 2: Sure glad he's ok. I can imagine that Daniels sure had a wake up call after that little blunder. But now we're going to take a short commercial break, stay tuned here for more here after.

We're going to pick up with our next topic, all things Open Wheel. Talent 1:(Camera 3) Max Verstappen continues his dominance over the F1 ranks, as he opens the 2024 campaign winning three out his four races. His only loss came at the Rolex Australian Grand Prix where his breaks failed on his Red Bull Machine five laps into the race. Talent 2:(Camera 1) As we take a look at the points, you can see Verstappen as the point leader with 77, with a 13 point lead over his teammate Sergio Perez. Talent 1:(Both back to camera 2) On the IndyCar side of things, Josef Newgarden won the opener at St. Petersburg back on Talent 2: Kyle Larson, same one from the NASCAR segment, attempting to run both the Indy 500 as well as the Coke 600 in the same day, impressed in the test, setting the 2nd fastest time in his first session before the combined session was halted due to rain. Here is a look at the indycar point standings after just the first race, with Chevrolet showing an impressive start to the year holding the top 4 point positions. Talent 1: Coming up next, we'll take a look ahead at our memorial day race outlook for each series. Right after this.
